Restoro has detected that my system has a low amount of system memory (RAM), what can be done?

Try to keep your startup applications to a minimum as with low amount of RAM every bit of system memory is important and wasting the majority of it on startup applications could and probably would decrease your systems performance. As such, it would be wise to add more memory to your PC. A total amount of 1GB of RAM should be enough for most Windows home users, although 2GB is recommended.
